Music Master

Color blindness

To make sure Music Master is accessible to color blind users the design compositions have to be checked for their readability to color blind users to assure the game is functional for someone who is color blind. Below is a description of the three most prominent forms of colorblindness.

Deuteranopia

Deuteranopia is a form of color blindness that presents in 1% of males. It is a rare form of color blindness. Someone who has Deuteranopia has trouble telling the difference between yellow, green and red.

Protanope

Someone with protanope type color blindness cannot distinguish between colors in the green, yellow, and red spectrum and violets are indistinguishable from blues. Red, yellow and orange are not as bright to someone with protanope color blindness.

Tritanopia

Tritanopia occurs in less than 1% of the population. Someone who has Tritanopia will not be able to distinguish between colors in the blue – yellow range.
